THE UTAH & NORTHERN.

A TRIP TO THE TERMINUS.

WHAT MADAME RUMOR SAYS.

A few days ago we concluded to visit the towns along the line of the Utah & Northern Railroad and look up their future prospects as to business, as also to see the country through which the road passes; we, therefore, threw the drapery of our couch from us, dressed ourself and at 2 a.m. mounted a seat beside our enterprising mail carrier, Mr. John Scott, in his spring wagon, and mid clouds of dust rolled out for the depot. The train was on time as is always the case with the Utah & Northern, and we found Dan Roberts in command of the little craft. Our friend Daniel has since been charged with some little irregularity in mail matters, which charge we hope will be found to be false, as he is a most excellent and worthy gentleman in our opinion. We lounged comfortably into a seat and dozed away the balance of the night arriving at Blackfoot, at 7 a. m. next morning, for breakfast.

BLACKFOOT CITY.

This was the last winter's terminus of the road and was an exceedingly lively "burg" until the terminus was removed to Eagle Rock sometime in May last. Blackfoot is situated on the north side of Blackfoot Creek a considerable sized stream of water, where it empties into the Snake River, is located on a high, dry and sandy peninsula of bottom land lying between the two streams. There is plenty of water in Blackfoot for irrigating purposes or for mills or other machinery. It is located on government land and steps are being taken to secure its entry as a town site under the act of congress regulating the entry of town sites. The town has been sleeping during the past summer but is again wakening up and putting on new life. New buildings are going up, various enterprises are being stimulated, and we look for considerable improvement at this point during the next year.

We find here the most comfortable hotel along the line of the road kept by W. C. Lewis, Esq., who has been following the road since it left Franklin on the south line of the territory. The Lewis House is two stories in height with comfortable parlors, dining room, and a commodious bar-room attached, where the thirsty traveler can secure Milwaukee lager or something stronger when desired.

The mercantile business is well represented at Blackfoot by T. T. Danilson, who has a store also at the ferry about one mile west of the station. Danilson is also the owner and operator of the Snake River ferry at this point, and it is a first-class ferry for a western river. Emigrants or freighters can always secure passage across the swift and turbulent Snake at all times of the day or night, at a reasonable toll. At his store, near the ferry, the freighter or miner can be supplied with an outfit on short notice. At the store up town a general assortment of dry goods and groceries are constantly kept on hand, and Danilson is also Uncle Sam's postmaster, keeping the office at his store. In order to accommodate his patrons and give him more room, he is erecting a new and more comfortable storeroom nearly fronting the depot.

The Railroad Company has a good depot at Blackfoot, the best really on the line of the road, with commodious freight buildings attached. Mr. Hanson is the gentlemanly agent at Blackfoot and finds plenty to occupy his attention in the way of business. To the east of Blackfoot, about eight miles, is

FORT HALL,

Commonly termed new Fort Hall, the old fort being located near the mouth of Blackfoot Creek, some three miles southwest of Blackfoot City, where Joseph Warren, Esq., now resides. The new fort is in a much better location in some respects, being out of the range of those fierce Snake River winter winds, and much nearer timber than at the old location. Through the kindness of Mr. Danilson we were enabled to pay the fort a visit, and we were well repaid for our trouble, as we enjoyed a very pleasant time while there as guest of the Commander of the Post, Captain A. H. Bainbridge. Fort Hall consists of a row of one-story buildings all neatly painted, and all fronting the sides of a square of ten acres of closely shaven lawn or meadow. The commanding officer occupies the center building on the east side of the square, the Adjutant, Lieutenant Reynolds, and the Surgeon Dr. Boyer, flanking him on each side. The Quartermaster and Commissary Lieutenant Kimball occupies the north side of the square, the blacksmith and other shops and stables on the west side, and the soldiers, the sinews of war and symbol of peace, occupy the south side. Well cultivated gardens are found around the outside of the fort the soldiers having raised this year more potatoes and other vegetables than they can consume, which speaks well for the commanding officer as well as the men in his command. Our visit to the fort was an exceedingly pleasant one and hope to be able to repeat it at some future time. Albert Kiesel the Post Trader is one of those whole-souled German gentlemen whom it is a pleasure to know, and we would advise all who pass that way to smile upon him. Resuming our journey northward we pass

EAGLE ROCK,

Thirty miles north of Blackfoot, and which was the next halting place of the road. Eagle Rock is at the crossing of the Snake River where the company have had erected a first-class iron bridge, consisting of two spans, one 160 feet in length and the other 130 feet, built by Kellogg & Maurice of Athens, Pa. It is 4,757 feet above the level of the sea, set upon two natural abutments of lava rock on either bank of the river, and rests upon an island of the same material. The town of Eagle Rock stands upon the east bank of the river, the river running southwest at this point. But few settlers remain in the place, but what few there are are determined to make Eagle Rock a place of some importance ere long. The old emigrant road from the east passes here and finds a good crossing over the river by the excellent bridge owned by the Taylor Bridge Company, among whom are Major Jack Anderson and his brother, and Dr. Woodruff of Chillicothe, Ohio. This company have now turned their attention to furnishing water for the irrigation of the Willow Creek and Snake River valleys and render it fit for the habitation of man, and they are already at work upon a ditch twenty feet wide and six feet deep, from the south fork of Snake River to be made along the low ridge between Sand Creek and Snake River, thus rendering it possible to irrigate the whole valley of Snake River. On the opposite side of the river from Eagle Rock lies the placer claim of the "Snake River Gold Mining Company." This is looked upon by experienced placer miners as the best mining claim upon the Snake River. Hon. M. N. Brewster is the managing Superintendent for the company. We have known the Judge for a long time and know him to be a scientific thinker and worker, and successful in everything he takes hold of. He has given some careful study to the Snake River placers, and has interested some of his friends in Chicago to invest with him in developing this claim. They have a strong and wealthy company and are going to work in earnest to develop the gold so plentiful along this river, and are taking out a ditch from Snake River some two miles above their diggings and will soon be ready to wash gold. Major Anderson is still running his store at the old town, to accommodate the settlers around, and is doing a good business. He also keeps the postoffice. During the past season we understand from Surveyor David that upwards of sixty families have settled on Snake River above Eagle Rock, and at that rate, if continued for a few years, will soon settle up the whole valley, wherever water can be obtained for farming purposes. At the next station

MARKET LAKE,

Which is 4,824 feet above sea level, we find good meadows and excellent grazing lands with but few settlers permanently located.

CAMAS CREEK,

Where the terminus was located for two months during the summer is the sandiest place we ever saw, is a perfect desert of sand in fact. It is also the starting point for Salmon City and different points in Lemhi County. A comfortable hotel is about to be erected, and a very excellent store is kept by Mrs. R. K. Johnson, widow of W. K. Johnson, who was brutally murdered last spring at Eagle Rock. Mrs. Johnson is an excellent business woman, is building up a good trade with freighters and settlers, and will have to enlarge her store building, to enable her to meet the wants of her customers.

Mr. H. O. Stewart is the agent of the Salisbury stage line at Camas, and is a very obliging gentleman, to whom we are indebted for favors.

Dry Creek Bridge spanning a deep gorge with walls of lava rock, rising fifty or sixty feet perpendicular, is 256 feet long. It is a truss bridge and took 68,000 feet of lumber to build it. The company have erected thirty-three wooden bridges and have fourteen more to build this season, and are using about 170,000 feet of lumber each month, for various purposes.

BEAVER CANYON,

The present terminus of the road, is situated in the lovely valley of Beaver Creek, near the point where it emerges from the rocky canyon. Here we found the busy, bustling population trying to get their shanties in condition to stay in for a month or so, or until the next move is ordered. Beaver Canyon has about 1,200 souls with but a "single thought," and that is to sinch the almighty dollar. They chase the fleeting shadow of a dollar with avidity as they know moving time will soon come, and their money is required for expenses, hence we don't blame them for wanting cash. Here you find the gambling rooms open day and night, hurdy gurdies in full blast, tables loaded with red and white chips and silver, staked upon the throw of a dice or the turning of a card. Tent hotels are filled with guests, and the valleys and mountains around covered with freight wagons. Here are the large forwarding houses of B. F. White who during the past year, or rather the shipping season of four months, shipped 4,000 tons of merchandise and mining machinery to Montana and the northern part of Idaho. Also the Northwestern Forwarding Co. operated by G. Y. Wallace & C. W. Lyman of Salt Lake City, whose shipments have been very large both ways, shipping out machinery and merchandise, and shipping to Salt Lake and other points ores and bullion, and last but not least the house of Murphy, Neel & Co. who run two mule and two cattle trains of their own with a carrying capacity of 250 tons each trip, carrying out machinery and merchandise and loading in return with ores and bullion. These three firms, it is estimated, handle about 10,000 tons of freight during the short season. L. J. Fisk, deputy Sheriff and lumber dealer, is one of the live men of the terminus and is one of the fixtures with it. Patrick O'Neil still keeps the hotel and is always ready to pounce upon the weary traveler and take him into his mammoth tent hotel, where he furnishes the best accommodations to be had at the station. W. M. Oliver is the agent for Cole & Carter, tie contractors for the road and is receiving ties by the thousand every week having about 200,000 ties at the terminus, and has a contract for 300,000 sawed ties to be delivered soon. Their saw mill, near the terminus, is now engaged in sawing them out. We met while at the terminus an old friend and acquaintance in the person of Mr. S. Fuller who is running a wholesale and retail liquor store there. He was once one of the solidest citizens of Council Bluffs, Iowa, doing a business of $100,000 a year as a wholesale dealer in refined liquors. We hope our friend Fuller may meet with unbounded success in life as he deserves. The winter terminus of the road will be at

RED ROCK

Or near that place, some twenty-eight miles from Beaver Canyon, where Superintendent of construction Dunn expects to be November 15th, and which will take the road about sixteen miles into Montana Territory, the distance from Beaver Canyon to the summit of the Rocky Mountains being only twelve miles, crossing at an elevation of 6,869 feet, and we mention here one fact which is well worth preserving and that is the Utah Northern is the first railroad to cross the Rocky Mountains eastwardly.

When the valley of Red Rock is reached the company will have constructed 122 miles of road this year to 101 miles last year, the section constructed last year being from Franklin to Blackfoot, making a total length of road of 302 miles from Ogden to the winter terminus, the longest and best line of narrow gauge railroad ever constructed. The steepest grade on the line of road constructed by the new company, of which Mr. Clark is the President, is about 125 feet to the mile but that grade is a very short one in Beaver Canyon, while making the rise up the Rockies. It is well constructed and furnished in a first-class style, thoroughly equipped in every way, except in the way of station houses which are very badly needed at one or two points, one especially at Oxford, and another at Franklin.

Many surmises are made as to the future operations of the company. One thing is settled upon, the Boise division of the road will be commenced very early in the spring and be pushed westwardly as fast as men and money can do it, and our friends at Boise can rest assured of it.

THE population of Dakota is given by counties, in the Deadwood Times, at 130,415.

THE pools sold on the racing events at the Montana Territorial Fair, last week, aggregated upwards of $36,000.

CORRESPONDENCE

CALIFORNIA LETTER.

San Francisco, October 5th, 1879.

Dear "Enterprise"—Our hero has left us, full of honor. Grant has gone to the Yosemite. While with us his couch was of lavender, his pathway of roses, the latter showered upon him by the enthusiastic school children of San Francisco, who had a glimpse of him at Woodward's Gardens last week. The General will return here, I believe, and then set sail for Oregon, accompanied by a chosen few. Many naughty whispers are afloat to the effect that this "business" is a political dodge. Let us hope not dear little "Enterprise," we do not wish to believe only evil of men, do we? Let us try and believe the spirit of patriotism alone has moved the multitude. Like all such gatherings there are foolish ones among the crowd, who have allowed the excitement of the hour, to o'er master their prudence and good sense, but I believe it is lack of wisdom and not knavery in the man, who places the already highly-honored General before him, who was "First in War," etc., on the roll of honor.

But the gentleman himself, what ever be his faults, does not gossip, (what a rebuke to myself,) he has learned the adage well—"a still tongue," etc. He discourses not upon his political future, and evidently thinks sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.

By the way speaking of politics, little friend, there is a decided lull just at present. The counter of the votes cannot seem to come to a satisfactory balance. One says another has made too frequent use of his multiplication table. Another says his neighbor has applied his rule for subtraction oftener than necessary in the mathematical calculation. At any rate justice, in the name of a patient, imposed-upon people, demands still another count.

Dr. Kalloch, by some unaccountable means, has gained the good will of the female residents of San Francisco en masse; they have not only worked for him, as far as influence in voting is concerned, but they now extend a substantial token of their good will in the form of a benefit, during the coming week, to defray the many expenses incurred during his recent illness.

There is a little political squabble as to whether or not the officers elected by the people for the short terms, (offices of tax collector and auditor made vacant by death,) are lawfully entitled to the places, as the Electoral Commissioners refuse to acknowledge Mayor Bryant's right to direct the people to elect said officers without their sanction.

To return to our Mayor elect, the ladies, who are most earnest in the benefit work, hold out as an inducement that the subscribers will be enabled to cast a ballot for Mr. Kalloch as the next President of the United States.

The days of Dick Turpin have passed, but evidently to the minds of our people, his blood still courses through the veins of some of the men of to-day. Mr. C. W. Carmany, Cashier of the Clay Street Bank, a few days ago was enjoying his weekly stroll to Black Point. He was approached by a well dressed, good looking man, who asked for money. Mr. C. extended a small sum to the supplicant, remarking his surprise that a person of such address should require alms. The naughty man immediately demanded all the valuables and money in Mr. C's possession, and upon a refusal, attacked him in the most brutal manner, injuring the unfortunate cashier severely. This occurred in open daylight, making poor nervous females shudder to think of man's audacity. Mr. C. is recovering, but the handsome highwayman remains in full enjoyment of "Sweet Liberty."

"Men may come and men may go
But I go on forever."

So sings the weary pedestrian in his heart. The walking match began last Wednesday and will continue until next Wednesday. So far the greatest good will is enjoyed among the participants, no jealousies, (a man would say there are no women there, but I won't go back on my sex,) nothing to mar the enjoyment?? of the footsore travelers.

Next week female pedestrians trip forth to show their powers of endurance and extreme amiability. For months to come our shoe stores will exhibit dainty? walking boots "worn by the lady who took the prize." I confess it is too much like unnecessary hard work for me to shower much sympathy upon such weary pilgrims.

During the coming week, Ada Cavendish with a strong cast, will play Miss Gwilt, in Wilkie Collins dramatized Armadale, at the "California." Miss Jeffreys Lewis will sustain the same part, with equally good support, at the "Baldwin." What the object is in thus presenting the same piece to the public at different houses, I do not know, unless 'tis some little spite between the 'stars." Better fight it out dearies as Maud Granger did. John Owens, in my opinion the best comedian alive, appears at the "Standard," in his time honored role of Solon Shingle, Major Wellington De Boots, etc. Grandfather's clock has stopped ticking, the Pinafore is wrecked, but the bootblacks polish, the baker bakes, the butcher kills, the pedestrians walk and the infant slumbers, all to the air of "Turkish Review." Let us pray the Review may be briefed. FLEETA.

LETTER FROM EAGLE ROCK.

Eagle Rock, October 7th, 1879.

Editors "Enterprise"—Since the terminus left this town there has been but very little transpiring that would be of interest to your readers. Eagle Rock was known as a town and trading post, many years before the "iron horse" reached here, and many a weary traveler has found food, comfort, shelter and sympathy from the old pioneer, J. C. Anderson, long before a railroad was thought of. The advent of the railroad here disarranged things materially. Its conservatism was ignored, its simplicity scorned, and its morals ruthlessly trampled upon. In place of her old primeval habits, there was to be seen and heard at almost every door, bacchanalian revels from the grog shops, the sound of the dice from the faro and poker tables greeted your ear at every turn; the fair and frail cyprien flaunted her cheap and gaudy upholstery before your eyes, and the hitherto calm still air of night was made hideous by the noise of the midnight reveler. All this is changed. The terminus has passed away and with it has gone the grog shops, the gambling hells, the bagnio, and that conglomerous mass of human beings that always flock to a new railroad town, and Eagle Rock is herself again as of old, except in one thing, the daily passing and repassing of that luxury to all travelers, the railway train. Eagle Rock has sterling and staying qualities, and is not dependent entirely upon the railway, while to us it is a great convenience.

A canal and ditching company was formed last Spring consisting of J. C. Anderson, Dr. Amos Woodward, of Ohio, and B. F. White, of Idaho; the object of which is to afford transportation for lumber, etc., and to furnish irrigation to the large area of fertile country bordering Snake River.

This canal is to commence some thirty miles above here, at the lower end of the South Fork of Snake River, running down on the south side and terminating at Eagle Rock. Preliminary surveys were made and the range staked out in the early part of the season. Mr. Handy, one of the best engineers in the country for this kind of work, has been engaged and is expected here daily, to commence operations. The canal is to be twenty feet wide at the bottom, and four feet deep. The engineer was greatly surprised in making the surveys at the facility with which so large an area of rich and fertile country could be irrigated. The line of this ditch will lay along a dividing ridge, from each side of which, covering a distance of five miles in width, for an extent of twenty miles, the land can be easily irrigated. The soil through this section of country is naturally very fertile and will average about four feet in depth. It is exceedingly well adapted for the cultivation of the smaller cereals, such as wheat, oats, rye, etc., and all kinds of vegetables. With the consummation of the above mentioned enterprise, all this land can be brought into use, and a country that is now only occupied by roaming herds of cattle can easily, under the skilful hand of the husbandman, be made to blossom like a garden. In addition to this there are many persons who hold placer mines on this side of the river who will, on the completion of this canal, which will furnish abundant facilities for sluicing, commence mining operations. These, with the Idaho Snake River Mining Company, and others, will make the mining business, in a short time, quite lively in this section. The canal will bring here also an immense water power for the use of sawmills, factories and flour mills. In view of all these advantages, we look to see Eagle Rock come up with a steady and healthy growth, and the country along and adjacent to Snake River, dotted over with thrifty farms and rich mining camps.

An accident occurred on the railroad, some miles above here, causing the ditching of a freight train. The wind had blown the sand from beneath the ties and left them sustained only by the rails. The railroad company will have to put on a heavier ballast.

In looking out from my window this morning I discovered that the old Wasatches had through the night (with becoming modesty), changed their autumnal garb for that of winter, and their tall forms, reaching out skyward are now covered with snow. The old toll bridge yet stands and is doing good service, seemingly bidding defiance to her rival, the bridge of the "Iron Horse."

The Idaho Enterprise.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1879.

☞ THE ENTERPRISE is for sale at the well-known store of Claster & Dodge, at the Terminus of the Utah & Northern Railroad, and at Mr. Alexander's News Agency, in the post-office building, Ogden.

Episcopal Service.

On Friday evening at 7 o'clock, divine service will be held at the school house in Oxford by Rev. Mr. Bisaker, of Ogden. All are cordially invited to attend.

Not the Man.

Dan Roberts, a conductor on the U. & N. R. R., who was arrested on suspicion of being concerned in robbing the mails on the U. & N. R. R., was discharged from custody at Ogden on the 9th inst., there not being enough evidence of his complicity to hold him for trial.

Can't be Beat.

The ENTERPRISE office is just now turning out some fine specimens of Job Work. The office is thoroughly prepared for doing good work at short notice. Send your orders for Job Printing to the ENTERPRISE office, instead of to the East, when you can get so good work at home.

Contested Land Case.

The hearing of the contest Hansen vs. Harris is set for the 22d inst., at the Land Office.

We learn that it is the intention of the contestants in the Boise land case to appeal from the decision of the local land officers to the General Land Office. We do not hesitate to say that in our opinion such course in this case does not promise the results contemplated by the appellants.

Local Jottings.

Mr. C. B. Fox has removed to his new house on Main street, opposite the Land Office.

Some kind of pavements are very badly needed this rainy weather. Mud on the sidewalks is about as deep as any other place on the streets.

Mr. Fisher, father of Bishop Fisher, after a visit of three weeks with friends here, returned to his home at Bountiful, Utah, on Wednesday last. He informs us that his health has been much improved by his sojourn here, and that he will likely return.

Looks Like Horse Stealing.

Bishop Fisher obtained information from Logan a few days since that some fifteen of his horses had been seen there in the possession of parties who were traveling southward. He at once took every means to overtake them, and Constable Butterfield was sent in pursuit, armed with a warrant. On Sunday the horses were brought in by a resident, he having found them on the range a few miles below Oxford. It is supposed that they were returned that far by the person or persons who had taken them, as they were almost sure to be overtaken by the officer in pursuit. The case has the appearance of a regular attempt at stealing. Their value was something like $1,500, and we congratulate Mr. Fisher on his luck in getting them back again.

More Irregularity in the Mails.

The mail carrier reports that the mail bag which should have been delivered to him at 2:05 on Thursday morning last, was taken on to the Terminus, and on Friday morning he was told that it had been placed on the platform at the Terminus, but was "forgotten to be taken on board." This is a flimsy excuse—in fact, no excuse at all. The train officials of the U. & N. have good regulations for their carefulness in ordinary matters and for obliging dispositions. If they would extend such care to the mail bags for Oxford, it would render a service, of little trouble to them, but of great importance to the community.

Another batch of complaints should be sent to headquarters, and the fire kept up until the mails are looked after in a business like manner.

Professor Wyman.

Professor Wyman gave another performance to a rather small audience on Saturday evening last. Several things combined to render the evening an unpropitious one. An interesting law suit was being held before Justice Finney, which was quite an attractive feature; then the roads were muddy and ladies could not get out very well. Many of our citizens were absent from town, which altogether caused a thin house.

The performance was in the main a repetition of the first, with some new features added, which were interesting to those having never seen much sleight of hand and kindred performances. Punch and Judy were there and caused much merriment for the younger portion of the audience.

On Monday night the Professor gave a performance at our neighboring village of Clifton, which was highly received and appreciated by a goodly number of the people of that place.

New Patents.

Dewey & Co.'s "Scientific Press" Patent Agency has received notice of the issue of the following patents to Pacific Coast inventors, for the week ending Sept. 30, 1879: 220,076, Andrew Jackson, S. F., wrench; 220,180, S. W. Shaw, S. F., dredging machine; 220,102, H. White, Quincy, Cal., hand weeding tool.

The Endowment House.

One feature of the Mormon Church is that a mere profession of its religion is not enough to regenerate the candidate, or perfect him or her in the duties incident to its full practice. Certain hidden mysteries form a part of the ceremonies, but it does not follow that those are assumed by all who adopt the faith of the Latter Day Saints, nor does it appear that every marriage celebrated between those of the faith must be conducted in the style peculiar to what is termed the endowment ceremony. Marriages are consummated by the mere legal form in use everywhere, and are made a matter of record in the County Clerk's office, the law prescribing that the officer performing the ceremony shall deposit his certificate thereof for record at the County Seat.

But in taking the second and subsequent wives, it is said that there are no marriage records kept such as are contemplated by law. The obligations are entered into in the secrecy of the endowment house, and form no part of evidence to support the status of the children of such unions. This mere fact is a violation of the common rights of offspring, which are so carefully guarded by statute laws providing for the record of marriages. The churches perpetuate the chain of title by their public records of marriage contracts and baptisms, which records are open to the inspection of any citizen.

But where the issue of a "sealing" or polygamous marriage is left in doubt as to his legitimacy, what course can be adopted to clear up the record. The church officers deny that the records are public, and refuse to say that a contract of marriage was made. So what is to be done by the many who are thus left without any recognized paternity, in the absence of any law providing for them an honorable status, and legal ancestry.

In the Salt Lake "Tribune" of the 28th September, is given over the signature of "Mrs. G. S. R." of Nephi, an account of the ceremonies gone through by that lady in the endowment house. She gives plans of the building, showing the various departments, such as the "Garden of Eden," "Prayer Circle," "The World," "Heaven," "Sealing Room," "Instruction Room," &c., &c. Cuts are also given of the endowment robes which are furnished to both sexes. The mysteries, oaths, vows, and grips, are exposed, confirming what has been asserted, that the endowed are sworn to "obey the laws of the Mormon Church and all they enjoin, in preference to those of the United States." We have not heard the truth of the article questioned by any one, and as its authenticity seems to be genuine, it must be accepted as a truthful statement. Now seems to be an opportune moment to bring forward such evidence, bearing as it does on the actions contemplated to occupy the Courts in Salt Lake City.

The secret parts of a religion are between man and his God. The confessionals of the Roman Catholic Church can be avoided, but the officers thereof do not set at defiance established law in any of their forms or ceremonies, and the marriage contracts are matters of public record and celebration. We can see no want of respect, or any lack of courtesy or justice in demanding, in the interest of the children of each marriage, the evidence of its celebration, to the end that a legal status may be given to them.

The records of all marriage contracts should be free of access to the officers of the law, or any who are concerned, and to deny this is to take from the offspring that which will not enrich others, but make them poor indeed.

The Snake River Placers.

While at Blackfoot City a few days ago we paid a visit to the placer diggings of Lawrence & Holmes, some two miles or so southwest of town, and found Holmes and his men engaged in "cleaning up." We were engaged on the spot, by Holmes to "chip in" and assist in the labor, and we gained some valuable information for the readers of the "Enterprise" by so doing. Lawrence & Holmes are running two set of plates, silver-plated and manufactured by the Gorham Manufacturing Company of Connecticut. They have taken out a ditch from Blackfoot Creek which supplies them with plenty of water for running a dozen plates more than they have. From this main stream they have lateral ditches running over to the bank of Snake River where they have the plates set. Water is turned on through these lateral ditches, which wash the dirt sand and gravel through a flume and over a sieve which carries off the coarser material while the gold and finer sands wash through on to the plates, the gold adhering to the plates and the sand and dirt washing away.

Mr. Holmes cleaned up from the two plates while we were there about ten ounces of amalgam, valued at about $6 per ounce, as the proceeds of one days' run. This is done with the labor of two men we believe, so that they can say truthfully they are making from $25 to $30 per day to the hand. With improved facilities they can increase upon the quantity of gold saved. The gold is of the flour gold variety, very excellent quality and no end to the quantity of it. We believe, after a careful examination, that in a short time, say two or three years, Snake River will be alive with miners from the lower falls to the source of it. Every one who has properly experimented during the past season has been thoroughly successful and is to-day making money.

General News.

There are $164,000,000 in the sub-Treasury at New York.

General Grant has had a grand reception at Astoria, Oregon.

General Roberts has entered Cabul, accompanied by the Ameer and suite, as prisoners.

Lead has gone up booming. Fifty dollars a ton should make galena mines loom up.

The report of the killing of Indian Agent Meeker was too true. He was shot through the head by the Indians.

The county of Allegheny, Pa., has been adjudged to pay $2,000,000 for damages done by the railroad riot in 1877.

General Grant left San Francisco on the 9th for Oregon, after a reception given him by the Chamber of Commerce.

A petition has been addressed to the Premier of British Columbia protesting against the employment of Chinese in the construction of the Canada Pacific Railroad.

The Ute outbreak promises to be ended very soon, as the Indians are retreating southward, and if not pursued it will never be known who were engaged in the massacre of Major Thornburg.

Another serious railroad collision has taken place near Wheeling, being the result of a misunderstanding of telegraph orders. Why don't they adopt the telephone for such purposes.

Phineas H. Young, brother of Brigham Young, deceased, died at Salt Lake City on the 10th inst., in his 81st year, and was buried on Sunday last. He was one of the early settlers of Utah.

The hostile Indians in northern Idaho who committed the murders at Raine's ranche, and doing damage generally throughout that section of country, have surrendered. Lieut. Farrow has them in charge to the number of thirty-nine.

John H. McGrath, who was suffering from inflammatory rheumatism, died at Challis on the 9th inst., from an overdose of morphine taken to relieve pain. An inquest was held by Justice Van Camp, acting as coroner, and a verdict rendered in accordance with the above facts.

The great walk in San Francisco closed on the 7th. McIntyre made 500, Carmichael 478, Scott 455, and Murdock 400 miles. The winner gets $2,500, the second $1,500, and the other two smaller sums. The ladies' walk began on the 8th, with nine entries. It was preceded by a two hours' race of two Apache Indians.

Legal.

An action was heard in Justice Finney's Court on Saturday and Monday last, wherein William Bell claimed from James Burrup $20.40, the value of 147 ties, alleged to have been taken from the canyon, and sold by Mr. Burrup. Two days and one night were occupied in hearing the evidence, and the jury returned a verdict for plaintiff for 111 ties, or $22.20.

Mr. Bennett appeared as counsel for plaintiff, and Mr. Marsh for defense. The defense appealed from the decision, and filed their papers. After this it dawned upon the minds of the plaintiffs that no appeal could be claimed where judgment was under $25. The costs of the action will amount to nearly $200, to say nothing of the time spent.

Dressmaking and Millinery.

Ladies wishing dressmaking or millinery work done can be accommodated by calling on Mrs. M. E. Graham, at the residence of Mr. W. A. Finney, Oxford, Idaho.

Bullion and Ore Shipments.

The Northwestern Forwarding Company at the terminus, during the season of three months, has shipped 700 tons of bullion to Omaha, 700 tons copper matte to Germany, and 1,200 tons of gold and silver ore to Denver, Colorado, and Pennsylvania.

Their out shipments since May last have been about 1,600 tons of merchandise. They have now bills of lading for 500 tons of merchandise from the east and are shipping east 200 tons of bullion and ores, and the average is rated at 200 tons per week until the season closes.

J. R. Meeder, of Salt Lake City, is the heaviest shipper of silver ore, shipping from Butte City, Montana, matte and bullion coming from Glendale, Montana.

THE "American Kindergarten Magazine" published monthly by Mrs. Emily M. Coe, room 70, Bible House, New York City, is a most complete Journal for the young folks. It should be in every house, and the terms are but one dollar a year. Its hints on education are valuable, and it is a real teacher in itself. The illustrations are excellent, and the system of teaching which it advocates is a most approved one for the children.

MISCELLANY

Shall Utah Be Admitted as a State?

[From the New York Mail.]

One of the most crafty schemes the Mormons have ever concocted is the one to evade the laws of the United States against polygamy by gaining admission for Utah as a State. When once the Territory is admitted to the Union on an equality with other States, the power of the general government to regulate the laws prohibiting the practice of polygamy by its inhabitants will be at an end. Even if the Constitution of the new State contained provisions against polygamy, it would yet be possible for an amendment to speedily remove the obstruction, and laws could be passed which would practically annul the hateful provision, without a Constitutional amendment. The danger of a strategetic movement of such a nature on the part of the Mormons has frequently been discussed, but a staff correspondent of the Tribune calls attention to it anew by a timely letter from Salt Lake City. There are circumstances which make the present time especially favorable for a movement to gain admission for Utah into the Union as a State.

The price the Mormons will be prepared to pay for such admission is political support to the party which grants it. As a State, Utah would have three electoral votes, and the power of these votes in 1876 would have been the making of a President. There is no reason, from the well known characteristics of the man, why Slippery Samuel would not be willing to drive a bargain with the Latter Day Saints by which he could secure a new State for the Democrats in 1880, without the slightest draught from his bar'l, simply by persuading the Democratic Congress to admit Utah. Of course, the wily old man would endeavor to hide his real intention, and make it appear the terms upon which the Territory is admitted are the abandonment of polygamy on the part of the Mormons; but the nation would discover, before Tilden had been long ensconced in the White House, that the admission of Utah upon such a condition was another sly trick. No sooner would the Mormons obtain control of Utah as an independent State, than they would tear away whatever barriers to the practice of polygamy its Constitution might contain. To admit Utah before its system of polygamy is eradicated would be to perpetuate that national disgrace. Shall Utah, then, be admitted? is the question. Undoubtedly the unanimous voice of the moral people of the nation is, No.

Every circumstance seems to point to the present as a time especially favorable for an effort of the Government to overthrow polygamy in Utah. The Mormons are aware that a crisis has come, and they are right in their belief that if they can escape for a few years longer, they will then become comparatively secure from interference on the part of the Government. They greatly fear the hostility of the present Administration, and a manifest determination on the part of the authorities to enforce the laws in Utah would be regarded with the greatest apprehension. Existing laws against polygamy are very defective, and a new enactment is urgently needed; but resolute action for the purpose of enforcing the laws as they now are would shake the system of polygamy practised by the Mormons, and the passage of a new law for the eradication of the evil would fatally shatter it. The present is a great opportunity for the friends of morality throughout the nation. But, whatever is done or left undone, it should be borne in mind that, under existing circumstances, the admission of Utah as a State, is virtual consent to the perpetuation of Mormon polygamy.
