MISCELLANY

A Pew with a Point
Only one pew in the church is reserved for the poor.

How a Man Hangs Out Clothes
The man hangs out his clothes in a peculiar manner.

BY KATE IN
Once in a while there is a man who leaves just force to help his wife.

Wish him long life and freedom from thimble, thimble, and thimble.

And we hope his wife will love him and cherish him as the apple of her eye.

It is always very cold weather when a man hangs out his clothes.

It is awful good in him to do it as he said in the beginning.

He does it to lay his wife, or because the snow flutters under her dress.

He hangs out his clothes in a peculiar manner, and it is very strange.

manner, and it is very strange.

not privately entertain the opinion that they can do any kind of woman's work as well as the men.

He braces himself, for it is generally try under a catherine, pure three pins in his shirt to have them handy.

The first thing he brings out is a pillow case. He puts that on a little crosswise, and pins it on both sides.

Then he gets out a pair of drawers and holds them out, considering which they ought to go. Washstand pins of course, but in the way, they are with, he argues, and he puts them on, and pins them, and surveys them with an air of satisfaction.

Oh, he says, he is a wonderful wife from the window, 'Do pull them drawers' legs down even! 'One of them is shorter than the other, and do, dear, hang the pillow case next to each other. Strange that a man doesn't know anything!

He stands next a night gown in one hand and a table-cloth in the other, and wants to know what difference it makes!

Why it does just as well if one leg is longer than the other?
And then he gives the shortest leg of the garment a vicious twitch, and has it set by his time, and it tears as easily as paper, and off it comes just above the knee, and the man who is hanging out clothes feels like sweating, and casts a furtive glance at the hour, and is glad to see that his wife has left her post of observation at the window for a moment and is not aware of the catastrophe.

'Charles!' cries his wife, 'you're hanging that shirt wrong and up!

Whoever saw a shirt hung up like that?' 'Of course a man would hang it up to anything with his arms and legs, but not like that!' He hastily fishes out a pillow-case, and hangs it over the demoralized garment, and then he pins on his sleeves, and hangs up his shirt, and then a sheet, and then a shirt, which he hangs by the sleeves, and thinks he has done a bed-tossed, but he had been so long doing his work that the clothes in the basket have gone for 'em, and he says, 'I'll fill the basket and the basket do not suit company.'

He lays out his strength, and up comes the soap, and the sudden relaxation of resistance on his part intensifies his effort, and he drops over backward and his feet land on the pile of clothes yet unshaken, and his head strikes the cloth-rop, and the pile over his forehead, who are watching him, as he up a feminine squeal of light and amuse-ment, and he feels as though he should like to tear somebody or something in two like pieces!

And he strikes the basket, and it hits the clothes in the basket, and upsets that and he gets up and rubs the blood from his head where he cut it, and the pile over his forehead, who are watch-
as though he should like to tear somebody or something in two like pieces!

And he strikes the basket, and it hits
the clothes in the basket, and upsets
that and he gets up and rubs the blood
the pile over his forehead, who are watch-

as though he should like to tear somebody or something in two like pieces!

And Charles' fingers will feel like sticks of cordwood to him by the time he is done, and it will take him half a day to thaw them out properly and get the tingle out of them.

But he is satisfied in spirit, for he believes that he has proved to the women of the vicinity, and to Mary Jane in particular, that he can hang out clothes as well as any woman in the ward. Yes, sir?

As just as soon as dinner is out of the way, Mary Jane rises on her legging and pin-bow, and puts on her mittens, and goes out and changes those aprons and things all over and picks up the pins out of the snow that he can't see, and finds out from the leg of the drawers and says that herself, but she'll hang the clothes but herself however, if she goes over her head in the snow!

The Cause of Thunder.
I have lately seen it stated in a newspaper upon the electric and magnetic that the phenomenon of thunder is not fully accounted for by any other theory as yet brought forward. Whether it be so or not, I am not well enough acquainted with the subject to say.

I believe the commonly accepted theory is that a vacuum is created in the path of the electric spark, and the subsequent rush of the air, which produces the detonation. If, however, it be allowed that the electric spark is not a material substance, but merely a natural force or mode of motion, the possibility of this theory is at once disposed of. It is a well-known fact that the passage of electricity in a high state of tension through a mixture of oxygen and hydrogen, not only causes an explosion, but also causes the formation of water, and it seems to me that the existence of free oxygen and hydrogen in the region of the electric disturbance, the phenomenon of thunder is sufficiently accounted for. Whether the normal amount of hydrogen in the air is sufficient to cause the stupendous noise of thunder, I am not competent to judge; but, if not, I would suggest that the presence of its abnormal amount might be accounted for by process of the electrolysis, which probably occurs between the two poles of the thunder cloud before the tension becomes so great as to cause a rupture of the circuit, and consequent discharge of the electric spark!

I would be glad to find some one better qualified than I have taken the subject in hand. It is a frequent experience of Dr. Tyndall's to show his audience of clouds. I feel convinced that by following this line of inquiry he could give us a real thunder-storm.

A True Story about Animals.
One damp afternoon the turtle came waddling out into the big room to borrow a little sand to lay his eggs in. "My friend," the elephant said "you are a very hard case."

"Yes," the turtle replied, "but while there's life there's hope."

The elephant was greatly astonished for he didn't know that the turtle was given to that sort of thing at all, and all the other animals, of course, because, you see, it wasn't often the elephant met anybody in the menagerie who would talk to him.

"Well, well, your second wife, she wasn't very good, was she?"

"Yes, she was a very hard case," said the turtle, "but she was a very delicate soul."

"I see, I see," said the elephant,
"but she was a very hard case."

"I see, I see," said the elephant,
"but she was a very hard case."

"I see, I see," said the elephant,
"but she was a very hard case."

"I see, I see," said the elephant,
"but she was a very hard case."

"I see, I see," said the elephant,
"but she was a very hard case."

"I see, I see," said the elephant,
"but she was a very hard case."

"I see, I see," said the elephant,
"but she was a very hard case."

"I see, I see," said the elephant,

the elephant looked at the turtle and said, "Well, good-bye, you've got presently, 'you pay as you go, don't you?'"

"Oh, yes, the turtle said, 'I have had that all over every once in a while, but I don't mind it. Well, good-bye, you've got presently, 'you pay as you go, don't

STORMY STORE.

The storm which reached us from the Salt Lake valley on last Friday night about midnight, was an extremely severe one.

The largest cotton mill in Bradford has been burned.

The school house also suffered severely, and at the present time is about as good as no school house.

The door was not a curely fastened and when it blew open the wind, log out of one side and tipped the house over nearly one foot from level.

W. A. Pittenger and six others were every body in Oxford.

The Idaho Enterprise, THURSDAY, JAN. 18, 1880.

Joseph White, over ninety years of age and a resident of Deseret, claims to be the first man in this country to lack up a sign reading "Shut this door."

THE UTE OUTRAGE

The reported outrage said to have been committed by the Utes upon the women captured by them, if true, will have every vestige of sympathy that may be felt for them by the friends of the so-called "peace policy."

What this country wants is more colleges, struck as our civilization is now by the savages and the half-breeds, and the more the better.

DIED

On Clifton, on Sunday night the 11th, died of Diphtheria, Sarah Hingham, daughter of Calvin Hingham, aged 3 years.

SCENARIOS.
A woman to the hills she went,
Confession of sin was her intent;
And her husband, great and small,
His faithful advanced them all;
And children in her company of sin, This meant that she a girl he'd win,
And borne a bit of woe up and down To all the long-suffering of the town.
The holy father for her own Created the situation of her own.
But while for all the rest, he pained gave,
He told her that she was not true,
And that to do his pleasure she must go Out by the way, and there she should grow, And gathering that largest, ripest one, Heater the woe and that when his was done.

She must come back again another day To tell him how she made the old story, The woman, thinking this a promise light, Resolved to do his will that very night, Feeling right glad she had escaped so well, But just as she was the priest to tell,
The priest said "I'll say that her story Through."
Then said "I'm a something still for you To do;
These little things which you have done I'd have you give every one, The woman said "But father, 't would be vain
To try and make up those who are again; The wife I've gathered them both far and wide.
Over the mountains, vale and mountain side."
The father said "The Elder from this The lesson I have taught you is not mine; You cannot gather back an ungodly man, Wife for soul sake will give in to sin."
Nor can the mischief once by mortal sown By any penance be again undone.

A German newspaper, which must be edited by a nimble man, declares that it is wrong to write in novels that the "sea runs very high," because, in fact, the sea runs very little more than twenty feet high. The German is right, and it is equally wrong to speak of a gorgeous sunset, for the sun does not set; or the moonlight sleeping on a bank, for moonlight never sleeps, or Father Rhine, for the Rhine is a river, and nobody's father. At all points of fact, it is wrong to use words at any time, for words always mean something else. The correct thing is to open your mouth only when you are hungry, and hold your tongue under all circumstances.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, who was always the shrewdest of the family, has gone abroad for the winter with his wife, leaving only a hard worked little Willie at home with no one to help him cut coupons off the $5,000,000 in 4 per cent recently purchased for family use.

Bigardus broke 5,500 glass balls the other day in New York, firing in the aggregate 5,544 times. This was done in seven hours, seven minutes and two seconds. The force of the recoil was equal to a forty pound blow at each shot. Bigardus made $1,000 by the feat.

Chairman Atkins, of the House Appropriations committee, who was taken ill at the beginning of the session, does not improve, and his friends are becoming somewhat alarmed as to his health. His physicians do not think he has the typhoid, although the symptoms are much like those of that disease.

"My darling," said he, "what a delicious taste your lips have."
Then she sprang up and yelled:
"Goodness, John, have you been eating my lip-salve?"

A man may be brave enough to walk right up to the cat's mouth and yet not have the courage to hand his wife a letter he has carried in his jacket fork pocket.

How is it, in fashionable weddings, that we always have a catalogue of the bride's wearing apparel, while we never hear of the groom having so much as a new pair of socks?

"Eve never had a silk dress in her life." She had no use for one.
There were no Ferguson girls across the way for her to paralyze with envy when she went out shopping in a silk dress.

A firm in Westphalia, Connecticut, a short time ago brought to perfection a new needle-making machine, by means of which 100,000 needles can be stamped and bored in a day of ten hours.

It is reported that when the news that Dan Vorhies was pleading in the Senate for the Union soldiers in the late war, reached Louisiana, large numbers of crocodiles came ashore and wept copiously.
