There has been considerable of a tumble in gas stock at different points since the report of Edison's success with the electric light. The influence has been felt in London, and John Bull begins to "see by way clear."

DAN RICE'S CONVERSION.

The Tribune Office Shows Experience. From the Boston Post-Dispatch. The announcement in one of the morning papers that Dan Rice, the old circus clown and manager of shows, had been converted by Moody and Sankey, rather surprised, this morning, the acquaintances of the venerable sinner. A special Post-Dispatch reporter, happening to meet Dan Rice shortly after reading the astounding story, asked him if it was really true that he had been swept into the fold.

"It is an actual, living, burning fact," said the hero of a thousand circus fights, and the victim of a dozen bankruptcies, with an air of conviction. "I have been a big lay rough case all my life, and recently I have been down on the bed upon that an' that in my life. I've always tried to be honest in my dealings with men, you know, and I always had a bit of religious sentiment in me, but my wayward life made me about as hard a nut to crack as found this side of Halifax."

"How came your spirit to be touched I queried the porter. "Well you see," said Dan, "I had been on a Methodist's farm. I had actually had the jimjams. I was busted completely, and had about a year to realize that my end was run out. A few weeks ago I strolled into Dr. Schuyler's Church during the Moody service. I fell upon the youth, I was about twelve drunk at the time. Sankey was singing a splendid old song, one that I had heard my mother sing when I was a boy. I completely forgot all my sins. The tears came into my eyes then and there."

"At this point Mr. Rice blew his rather large and wrinkling nose with his thumb and finger and wiped them on the position back of his well worn trousers. "I was completely converted," he continued. "I never was a magnificent voice. I never was thrilled before in my life, and I've heard the best of them from old Daddy Rice down to William and Campbell. Seeing that I was moved, Mr. Moody made a bee-line for me. He gave me a good, earnest talk. I never heard a Methodist before who can talk like Brother Moody. He put the case in me as I never had it before, and believe I got out of that church I felt determined to do something. I was always a believer, you know. Moody invited me to come next night to Goodell's, and promised to preach a sermon for my benefit. I went, and he kept his word, you bet. He poured it right in to me about 'Lost sheep' and all that. It was one of his old stand-by, but he never preached like he did that night."

"Mr. Rice passed abstractedly, as though endeavoring to recall the beauties of that sermon. "That sermon did the business," said the show man. "I wanted me to go into the inquiry room, but I hadn't the nerve. I was so overjoyed all the same, though. I haven't drank a drop for two weeks, and I reckon I've been inspired a hundred times."

"What do you propose doing now?" asked the reporter. "The show business and religion don't jibe well together. "You're right," said Mr. Rice. "I saw the sign-boards. I'm going to fix up a set of lectures, giving reminiscences of my life, and associating with converts on my paper. I intend to take a trip through the States in a week or two. I'll sing some of Sankey's best songs, and I intend to write a good deal for myself. When I was in jail at Rochester, once, I wrote a bully piece of poetry, and I think I can do it again. I must give some of you newspaper fellows to keep me in the news, though, for, while I'm a good tongue and chin whacker I ain't much of a hand with a lecture. I am sure that I can succeed as an Evangelist, though for I'm as smart a man as Murphy. You can say in your paper that Dan Rice is an altered man."
