THE IRISH GRANDMOTHER

For the sake of the children, and for the sake of the old folks, it is well to know a few things about the Irish grandmother.

lips. Though none be smiling, though chills be thro, though cheeks be daubed with everything desirable for a baby to dab with, what is that to her? Nothing!

She sees nothing, but this—a baby!

She has but one impulse—to eat!

While smiling—not eat, one may think—she looks at that baby!

Oh, don't she!

To fly to the other extreme, there is the kiss of friendship. This is between two of the softer sex, the loving sex, and is a lifeless affair, the very emblem of a kiss. It is performed in this wise (for it is a performance):

Two ladies meet. They pocket their hands into an annular proberance, and cocking their heads to one side, as a hen will before picking up a grain of corn, two faces, full of unmakeable resignation and indelible devotion to duty, approximate touch, and retire.

The school-girl kiss is a very different affair.

As unlike the kiss of friendship as fire is unlike ashes, as life is unlike death.

The two school girls meet. Mouth flies to mouth, and lips to lips. Each would swallow the other. I wish it is so.

The swallowing tendency of one is offset by the like tendency of the other.

Thus are both preserved for the sons of men.

As they talk while they kiss!

Each says to each, "Oh, my dear darling [since morning] I've got so many things to tell you!" etc., etc., etc.

And this is all said contemporaneously with that kiss; in the same instant of time.

Sometimes two men kiss, but this branch of our subject is not attractive. We have no sympathy with it.

It is an abbreviation.

The kiss was excellence is of course, the kiss of love.

What is that like?

Don't ask us. It is indescribable.

Try it.

It is greater than honey and the honeycomb, sweeter than the oranges that are "all sweet." It is sweetness in the concrete, concentrated, boiled down.

Try it!

The matrimonial kiss is necessarily a tame one.

Duty is apt to grow generous. And that is not all.

We have said that the true kiss must have heart in it.

But the man has given his heart to his wife.

The wife concentrates her sweetness upon the baby.

There can be but one sequence.

The kiss of husband and wife is but a heroic collocation of lips.

The Star Service—Yellow Fever

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Postmaster General Key to-day sent the following order to Second Assistant Secretary: In consideration of the action of the House of Representatives in appropriating $1,000,000 for the construction of the Service, and pending the action of the Senate, suspend the action of the Senate to suspend further action under my order of February 20th, until further advised.

The Secretary of the Navy has been called from Monterey that the United States steamer Marion had arrived there from Rio, and that six officers and thirty men had been down with yellow fever. Lieutenant Wallis died on the 23d; Rogers, apprentice, on the 20th. All the officers except one, Lieutenant Wilke, were well and convalescing. The officers and men were ashore on Flores Island. It is supposed the fever originated at Rio while the vessel was coasting.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 28.—Apprehensions are felt regarding the rapidness of the river. A portion of the levee below Red river landing has gone into the water. Commissioners with a large force have gone to the point of danger.

CHALLIS!

THE METROPOLIS OF THE TANZIEK PARK MOUNTAIN REGION.

The grand and vigorous city of Challis is located at the base of the Salmon river range of mountains, about four miles from the mouth of the Salmon river on the Bridger range known as Challis creek, which cuts a deep wide gash into the Salmon river from the north-west.

It is a sunny location and is well placed for a winter rendezvous for mine owners and prospectors for the thirty local.

Near the site of the town several years since a gentleman by the name of Challis located a cattle ranch, expecting to be cut off from civilization until such time as he could amass a fortune when he would again return to the haunts of white men and enjoy the fruits of labor—but the live prospectors who are over on the lookout for "color and blind leads," unwearied, a few mineral veins which promise well, and the result is that a five mining district, and a busy thriving young city has grown up within the past two years, until it is known from ocean to ocean as the gate city to the bonanzas of wealth just back of it.

THE CONVENTIONS

Challis is about one hundred and sixty miles from Blackfoot its nearest railroad point, with which it is connected by a good stage line operated by Mr. F. H. Myers and Alex. T. Ponce two of the most genial and stirring western men it has been our lot to fall in with on our wanderings through Idaho.—A good road has just been completed from Challis to Bonanza by the Bonanza Toll road Co., under the direction of Myers & T. Ponce which opens up the Tanzeik Park country to the outside world.

We hope the Post Office department will extend the service upon this route to a daily service, as it is badly needed at present, and the necessities will accumulate with the coming season.

It is probable that a wagon road will be constructed down the Salmon river the coming summer, as it is really a necessity that cannot be permitted to exist much longer, by the moated men of Salmon city. With this wagon road opened for travel, and Challis holds the entire mountain trade to the untold wealth to be found in the mountains north and west of it.

THE LIVE MEN

Among the live citizens we met in the Gate city who are destined to aid in the development of this part of Idaho, were Mr. Watkins of the firm Watkins & Co., Col "Dave" Wood, who has just completed a fine store-room, the best we believe in the little city. The Col. is also a large owner in several rich mines in the region of the city.

J. McNabb manager for Geo. L. Shoup & Co. the leading mercantile house in Challis, James Barrat proprietor of the Challis Hotel, who with his lively and vivacious wit can keep time from dragging if anybody in Challis can, Mr. E. P. Johnson Atty at law, Mr. W. P. Wheeler for mercy of Chicago and now one of the stirring men of the mountains, Hendrick & Caswell who located late last fall at Challis with a drug establishment, is a good strong firm, and will become substantial citizens of the growing city.

For some years Challis will be a depot of supplies for the different mining camps located in Bay Horse, East Fork, Killbuck, Saw Tooth and Tanzeik Park districts, and will hold considerable commercial importance.

SOCIAL POSITION

Socially, Challis, will by and by, assume a distinctive position. There are many excellent families now permanently located there and they find it a pleasant place to live. They have a good school, and are contemplating the erection of a church building early this season, which will add much to the moral and social prospects of the city as a place of residence.

Agriculturally the Salmon river valley does not offer the same advantages to the farmer, although considerable crops of wheat, rye, and vegetables, very brought to perfection during last season by the few persons engaged in tilling the soil, and we have no doubt that with patient perseverance gardening may be successfully carried on, and will be within a year or two, but at present is neglected owing to the fact that everybody is anxious to grow rich in one season, and will poke around in the mountains for a gold or silver mine, instead of making money sure and fast in gardening or raising stock.

There are many things that one could engage in with profit at Challis. A dairy is badly needed, but grazing is excellent. There are some fine stock ranches near Challis already occupied and there are a number more awaiting the coming of live stock men to improve them.

The market at Challis will always be a good one for vegetables, poultry, and dairy products, and the energetic man that engages in the business of supplying the tables of the sturdy hard fisted miners of this rich country, will make money.

Ever since the cold snap the Washoe and Pate Indians have been selling jack rabbits, considerably below their usual market prices. Bill Jackson, who has been hunting for a week, tells a remarkable story in connection with this unusual supply. A few weeks ago he visited King's Canon, and there he asserted he found acres of jack rabbits frozen stiff on the ground. Rather than shoulder the responsibility of the remarkable statement, we give the yarn in Jackson's own words: "You see, the cold snap drove the rabbits into the canon out of the wind. One moonlight night I came across a drove of over 500 mule along the canon. They were all huddled together, getting as much warmth as possible from each other's bodies. The drove were packed together as close as the throats of a three-ply carpet, and as they moved along they looked like a big straggling blanket drawn over the ground. They passed close by me, and when I fired into the drove with a shot gun, eight or ten dropped, but the others closed right up and passed on as before.

This drove was making for Ash Canon. I didn't think at the time exactly what was up, but a few days ago I was up to King's Canon, and there I saw a sight which was the most unaccountable thing I ever gazed my eyes to. There were the rabbits—scores of 'em—all huddled together in a bunch, and packed like sardines, and every one of 'em frozen stiff as a wedge. I runed along the edge of the mass with my gun, and broke off a slice with a dozen all stuck together. Presently some Indians came along and began to yell. They concluded they'd struck a meat bonanza, and they've been laughing at the rabbits ever since. That's the reason rabbits are so cheap around the town.

Why, out in the brush you can find whole gangs of 'em standing on their hind legs, and frozen stiff. I shot a single one the other day; 'sposh he was alive." Other hunters report thousands of frozen jack rabbits in Carson Valley, although none have as yet yielded the astonishing riches described by Jackson.—(Carson News Appeal.)

GENERAL NEWS

A prominent member of the House appropriate committee, in a speech, said that Congress would adjourn by the first of May, but that it is a fact that in this country no Congress ever adjourned in the Presidential year until after the Presidential inauguration.

The Utah Mormons Impostors

Caracas, Mar. 10.—The Court of Common Pleas, of Lake county Ohio, in a decision just rendered, confirms the title of the Re-organized Church of Latter-day Saints, the non-polygamist or Josephite branch of Mormonism, whose headquarters are at Plao, Illinois, and of which Joseph Smith is President, to the old Mormon Temple at Kirtland, Ohio.

The decision makes it plain that the Utahs as the true Mormons, and the Utah Mormons are declared impostors.

The Mississippi Senate, by a vote of 21 to 15, has defeated a law to prohibit outsiders from enticing the negroes to leave the State. The South Carolina House of Representatives has passed a bill making it a misdemeanor to entice away laborers who are working under a written contract.

Cattle Losses

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10.—Silver City, Idaho, dispatch says the recent severe storm has resulted in great loss of stock in Malheur, Jordan, Reynolds Creek, and other winter ranges in Idaho and Eastern Oregon.

It is estimated that the loss already in these and adjoining valleys reaches nearly 50,000 head and is still mounting.

The working men of California are working themselves into a lather, out of which they will likely be "kissed" by the vigilantes inflicting blows of the demagogue Kearney and slandering him.

House working men should shun Kearney as they would a viper. He is a bad case, and will bring sorrow to many a poor doge until he is cut off by the process of law.
